The "Exposure" tool, found in the Camera Effects dialog, lets you change the brightness of selected areas of an image. The Gradient tool lets you apply gradients, or color transitions, to any object in the image. A gradient is a smooth curve, often seen as a rainbow of color. The Paint Bucket tool enables you to fill selected areas of an image with any colors and shades of colors. The Pen tool lets you create an object and sketch in the image. It is typically used for artistic images. The Sponge tool simulates a sponge, applied to an object, erasing it completely. It is useful for fixing any unwanted highlights or shadows. The Magic Wand tool allows you to select an area of an image that's similar in color to any other area in the image. It is typically used for selecting areas of an image that need to be retouched. The Gradient tool lets you apply a color transition from one area of an image to another. This tool works similarly to the Paint Bucket. The Eraser tool, found in the Tools Palette, lets you remove selected areas of an image. It is useful for removing unwanted marks from a photo, such as eraser marks from tracing paper. The Lasso tool enables you to select an object by tracing a shape, or path, around the object. The Splatter tool splatters paint in a pattern on an object, quickly creating a temporary mark. This tool is useful for creating splatter and graffiti images. One of Photoshop's most powerful tools is the Transform tool, found in the Tools Palette. It lets you create and transform all types of geometric shapes, including circles, ellipses, polygons, bezier curves, freeform paths and all other shapes. An effect is an alteration applied to the appearance of an image, using other tools such as brushes or filters. For example, the Hue/Saturation tool can be used to adjust the color and brightness of a picture. The Clone Stamp tool can be used to retouch or repair damages to an image. It is useful for removing scratches, smudges, dust particles, wrinkles, freckles, and birthmarks from a photo. Text is perhaps the most common type of non-photographic image in the digital age.

Photoshop is a good tool for enhancing and modifying a person's name, dates, or company name to make it look good. Photoshop is popular for designing logos for businesses, schools, and

GENEVA (Reuters) - Iran will be barred from exporting its crude oil, the United Nations atomic watchdog reported on Friday, following the departure of President Hassan Rouhani in exchange for easing of sanctions on the country.

Rouhani speaks during a meeting with a group of European Parliament members in Tehran, Iran, October 31, 2018. Official President Media/Handout via REUTERS Tehran's exports of 1.8 million barrels per day (bpd) via its biggest export hub, the port of Chabahar in southeastern Iran, have been capped since last November over concerns they could be used to help finance its ballistic missile programme. "The International Atomic Energy Agency will be prohibited from inspecting (Iran's) vessels, third country carriers or terminal facilities, as well as any financial accounts or transactions, to and from Iran, with a few exceptions," it said in a statement. "Consequently, the Agency is unable to verify the full and unrestricted implementation of the nuclear-related provisions of the JCPOA (Iran nuclear deal) and Iranian commitments." "In light of these developments, the Agency has suspended all activities connected to its verification and monitoring missions to Iran related to the safeguards Agreement,” the agency said, referring to the deal under which Tehran agreed to curbs on its nuclear programme in exchange for the lifting of international sanctions. Iran will also be banned from directly transferring imported goods to third country countries. Exceptions will be made for “humanitarian” goods. At the United Nations’ atomic watchdog, Iran has repeatedly denied ever seeking nuclear weapons, saying its atomic programme is peaceful. The International Atomic Energy Agency, which oversees the implementation of the nuclear deal and also monitored the development of Iran’s nuclear programme in the past, will continue with the limited monitoring of Iran’s atomic activities. “We are continuing to carry out inspections as prescribed in the JCPOA in order to verify that Iran is implementing its nuclear-related commitments,” IAEA chief Yukiya Amano said earlier on Friday. “The agency remains committed to performing this function as appropriate under the JCPOA.” Iran will remain party to the deal even though it is no longer the only party. Russia, China and the European Union have also committed to a security and nuclear pact with Iran, which has been widely criticized
