But we can't commit a part of changes to the repository. For example, I made changes and committed to the repository (revision #33) but I have no changes (revision #43). I want to commit only the part that I've made changes (revision #43) but not commit to the repository. Is this possible? A: Look at svnadmin dump or svnadmin create on your repository. svnadmin dump [your repository_url] > backup_of_your_repository.svndump You can either pass in the path of the dump to svnadmin create later or manually put in the path of your repository, create a repository directory, then create the backup. You can then import this dump later into another repository.
