F.E.A.R. - the full and complete game, a great shooter from time to time, not a commercial game, but the size is veryÂ .4.6.13 So, you know it's been a while since I wrote here... that last post, I was SO depressed! and then we went to go visit my uncle, and my MIL's sister. And we were all so happy and oohing and aahing over each other, but I had to go home and cry. Then, we went back, because my grandma was in the hospital. And then, I took mom to a conference, and came home late... and it was time to go to my internship, and I was so tired and sad... And then.... I was so happy when I got home, and after a few moments of chaos, I sat down to write. This morning, we went to the market and bought a few things to make dinner. I was making the list of things I needed, and the cashier looked up and said, "You look happy today." And I was, because I was going to spend my day at home with my family, in town - it was wonderful. And then, the man behind the counter asked if I was okay. And I started crying - he said to say "I am okay" and not to worry. And I thought how kind he was, and how true it was. So, I sent the man who gave me the basket of food to spend the morning in jail for having raised the price of cookies as he thought they were not enough. And then, I spent the rest of the day eating cookies and having a wonderful day with my family and my cousin. And the cashier at the pizza place said to me that it was because of the man that I was happy. And I realized, how true it was - because I am happy. And even though I did not feel like writing much... here I am, writing again. I think we all just need to keep our eyes and hearts open, and when we do, all we need is the kindness of strangers, of people who care...
