Here is the code: $sql = "SELECT NAME,DESCRIPTION,IMAGE,STARTTIME,ENDTIME,STATUS FROM VENTENERIES WHERE ENDTIME BETWEEN " . $startdate . " AND " . $enddate . " AND STATUS = " . $status . " ORDER BY STARTTIME ASC LIMIT 10"; The code $startdate is either 0 or 1, as is the rest of the values. However, I am getting the following error message: Notice: Undefined index: STATUS in C:\xampp\htdocs\System\config\dbconnect.php on line 9 The error message refers to the last line of the code: $status = $_GET['STATUS']; I'm not quite sure how that is possible since the only way I am using it is within the $sql statement. I am also not exactly sure why I am getting a notice about undefined index STATUS, which is what the error message refers to. Can anyone explain to me what is going on? A: You're using $_GET['STATUS']; in a condition. Do not do this. First of all, this is not safe: if ($status) { //... } Furthermore, this is not safe: if ($status = 1) { //... } The first issue will generate a notice: Notice: Und ca3bb1094

Copyright (c) Autodesk Autodesk 3D, Mechanical, Civil, Product Design. Town Square Commentary Commentary Posted: Nov. 25, 2012 @ 3:25 am By Steven K. Sands / For The Times What will Santa find in the town of Honesdale, N.Y., for 2012? We'll have to wait until the big day arrives to find out. The closing of the deal for the town's 2012-13 budget in September came a little later than expected. But not much. The budget is a blend of local revenue, state aid, local projects, and a variety of federal programs, a concept that is found in most municipalities. The total budget includes some $45 million in local projects, of which the majority are education-related. Included in the latter category is the school construction project at a cost of $3.6 million, and repairs and replacement of various other educational facilities. The local share includes a 0.1-cent increase in the tax levy for the 2012-13 fiscal year, bringing the total local tax rate to 5.5-cents per $100 of assessed property value. The tax levy increase comes mainly from the borough's share of the cost of the school construction project, and an increase in the school district's insurance levy to cover increased health-care costs for 2012-13. The town's allocation of state aid totals $5.7 million, and comes from New York State and federal funds. The state aid includes a $2.4-million allocation to Honesdale for a mix of state aid and local projects. Federal aid comes in the form of a $2.3-million Appalachian Regional Commission allocation and a $0.3-million allocation for the state-federal Appalachian Regional Commission program. The town estimates the total local revenue at about $20.8 million. That includes an additional $735,000 from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, and a $10-million increase in the town's share of the school district's insurance premium. We'll know exactly how much money the town of Honesdale receives from the federal government when the 2012 tax-freeze comes to a close at the end of 2012. State aid is expected to be about $6 million, with the balance coming from local sources. The town still has the typical financial issues that face
