Q: Why does `uniq -c` show duplicate lines? My problem: I have a file with lines like this: 7 1 2 3 1 5 2 4 1 When I run `uniq -c` it shows: 3 1 1 1 2 1 2 1 I was hoping that it would display: 1 2 3 4 5 Why doesn't `uniq -c` remove the duplicate lines? A: From the manual page, it says the following: `-c, --count` Output only the number of lines in each file. It's counting the lines. It's not removing them.
