keymacro is an interactive graphical software which helps you to create, play and record notes with any note taking application. When you need to take notes and you are using a dedicated application, such as MS Word, MS Excel, Apple Pages, OpenOffice Writer, Eclipse etc., it is pretty annoying to have to switch from one application to the other. With keymacro, you can create a macro for a specific application, create and edit macros on the fly, control the macros from the macro menu, and monitor the macros while you work. keymacro can also take a picture or take a screen shot with a single click, and display it on the screen as a watermark which will be automatically removed when the picture is saved. This technique can be used to create decorative screen shots in word documents and similar projects. keymacro can be used to record notes and add them to a specific file. You can choose whether you want to use the file name as the title of the note, or as the body of the note, or as both. keymacro can also create and modify hyperlinks in the notes. It also creates macros which can be run from the command line, from a script or even from the DOS prompt. Once created, a macro is saved and can be used as a template to create similar macros for other purposes. You can also publish the macros on the web to allow other people to use them, or to create a public directory of macros that can be viewed from other computers on your network. Keymacro allows you to create macros for almost any Microsoft Windows application. Have fun and enjoy with keymacro! Macros for all Microsoft Windows applications keymacro has the ability to create macros for many different Microsoft Windows applications. The following products are supported: 1. MS Word 2. Download link: Development of a High-Sensitivity Fluorescence Nanosensor for Detecting Uranyl Ion. The rapid development of mineral resources, such as phosphate, uranium, and thorium, has increased the demand for analysis and monitoring of metal ions. As such, development of highly sensitive sensors is essential. In this work, an extremely high sensitivity fluorescence nanosensor has been developed for the detection of uranyl ions. The biosensor was composed of uranyl ions-specific aptamers on the surface of gold nanoparticles, with a detection limit of 0.8 nM. Gold nanoparticles were synthesized by a chemical reduction method, with an average diameter of 25 nm. These gold nanoparticles were conjugated with specific uranyl ions-binding aptamers, which were obtained from the cell surface display technique. The UV-Vis absorption spectra of aptamers were similar to that of gold nanoparticles, with a peak at 530 nm, and the fluorescence spectra showed a peak at 540 nm. Gold nanoparticles immobilized on the surface of 96-well microtiter plates were detected using the fluorescence spectra, in a 2-nM range of uranyl ions, and the activity of aptamers was not
