Adobe has its own line of watch apps, and they even built one especially for the Apple Watch. Users can put their contact info on smartwatches, and Adobe has built a watch app that displays them on the device, touchable and live. Adobe is rethinking user interfaces by using gesture-based directional controls such as a double tap to zoom in, or a drag to pan around an image. Needless to say, it's snappy... Although not a feature review, I do take the time to look at macOS' built-in apps, and lately I have been amazed.
